

To whom it may concern

The bearer of this letter has been given geko™ W medical devices as part of their health care. It is worn every day and it is important that they can continue their treatment and need to take devices with them whilst travelling.

The geko™ W device is a medical device and is powered by a lithium coin cell battery. It is applied just below the knee and causes muscles in the leg to twitch resulting in a small movement in the foot.

The geko™ W device does not contain any hazardous materials.

For more information visit www.gekocodevices.com

